

The Most Exciting Hotel Openings For 2024

This year marked a memorable one of travel full of boundary-breaking flight routes, viral trends like sleep tourism and vintage vacations, and much-anticipated hotel openings. Among the more scintillating property debuts included Six Senses Rome, the reopening of The Georgian in Santa Monica, and The Fifth Avenue Hotel in New York City — each with its own special backstory and design POV. Looking ahead to next year, 2024's most awaited hotel openings are in a similar trailblazing spirit. You can expect new hotels cropping up in wanderlust-inducing destinations with strong design aesthetics and innovative food and wine menus (plus wellness amenities and experiential programming to boot).

As you wrap up 2023 and begin to dream up your grand adventures for next year, let TZR's guide to 2024's most exciting hotel openings inspire your planning. From a historic New Orleans music venue turned boutique hotel, to a Rosewood perched on the banks of a fairytale Austrian lake, there's plenty for jet setters to be excited about. Also not to miss: late 2023 openings that may have slipped under the radar as well as reopenings, renovations, and redesigns slated for the coming year. All of that, and more, below.

East Coast

Philadelphia's artsy Fishtown neighborhood will welcome the addition of Hotel Anna & Bell. The 50-room boutique property takes design cues from elements such as century-old wallpaper and embroidery detail throughout public spaces. Up in Portland, Maine Longfellow Hotel will open its doors in the city's historic West End with design by Post Company and ownership under Uncommon Hospitality. Nature and adventure resorts company Outbound Hotels, which launched in September of this year, will welcome its third location next year in picturesque Stowe, Vermont. And speaking of scenic backdrops, the Hudson Valley will enjoy yet another hotel debut with the addition of The Ranch Hudson Valley. This will mark the first East Coast destination for the renowned luxury health and wellness brand and it will sit on a historic lakefront just 45 minutes from NYC.
